All the Conditions Were Favorable for Great Performance, and Driver McDowell Never Had to Use the Whip Throughout

Galesbung, Ill., Sept. 19 .- Fifteen thousand people yelled themselves hoarse this after-noon when the great trotting queen, Alix, best the world's record by coming under the wire in 2:03%. The day was an ideal one for such an event and the track in good condi-

The start was made in splendid style, Alix going as regularly as clock work, with head down and her short, pointed ears twitching nervously. When she approached the wire for the start she seemed to be going a little slow, but she soor increased her speed. She was working like a machine and yet so easily and gracefully that one would hardly imagine she was going at such a tremendous clip.

was going at such a tremendous citp.

When the quarter was reached there was a general exclamation: "Thirty and a half, she will heat it!" From that to the half she seemed to fly, making it in 1:01%. The third quarter she increased her pace a trifle, making it in 1:32%. When she started up the homestretch she was moving along without apparent effort. The last few rods she again seemed to increase her marvelous speed and as she darted under the wire the shout went. as she darted under the wire the shout went up from the thousands: "She's done it; she's Driver McDowell said: "It was a remarkable mile. She did not seem worried a bit by the effort, but came out as fresh as she went in. Her action was perfect. The whole distance I never spoke to her or raised the whip; it was not necessary. When I reached the half-mile pole, I knew that she would break half-mile pole, I knew that she would break the record. She was in the very pink of condition and so eager to go that she needed no urging. I therefore let her go at her fixed gaif from the half mile in. At the upper turn at the end of the third quarter I found the track a trille spongy and I gave her gave her second pince; when I reached the home stretch I gave her the pole again. I was confident she could beat the record, and I wanted her to for Williams' saze."

Alix is now six years old. Her first race was at Bestrice, Not, in June, 1890, then a two-year old. Last year she made a record of 2079. The first tratting she did this year was in an exhibition at Council Bluffs, where

HOT BUSINESS RIVALRY.

Men Who Drive Headlong to Death While

At the present day eminent position in any profession or business is the result of hard, unwearied labor. Men can no longer fly at one dash into preminence or fame. They have got to hammer it out by steady and rugged blows. Continued effort and unceasing vigilance are the price of success, and those who are deficient in energy and perseverance are the ones who fall behind in the race.

There is one lesson that every man should learn in these driving times. The moment he feels that his energy and vital force are diminishing he should promptly call a halt and lay up for repairs. The more promptly he does this the greater will be his saving in time, expense and physical suffering. To neriest-this duty is to invite the most serious consequences.

Thousands of young and middle-aged men, through ignorance, refuse to heed the protests of their overworked nervous organizations. They continue at their desks or places of business day after day, or keep up their ladulgence in the excesses that may be at the bottom of their trouble. They are conscious of feeling wearied, of having lost their snap and enthusiasm in their work, of finding extreme difficulty in the performance of those tasks that formerly cost them scarcely an effect.

testes that formerly cost them scarcely an effort. Unfortunately, they do not realize that their condition, if neglected, must lead them surely and inevitably into wasting diseases, if indeed it does not end abruptly in paralysis or "heart failure," which have become so alarmingly common in these days.

Let no man deceive himself. If he is suffering from diminished nervous force he is in a dangerous condition and should lose no time in seeking a cure. His physician may be able to do nothing for him, and may even tell him he has nothing to fear. This is false, he has everything to fear. He has insomnia, dementia, paralysis, paresis, locomotor ataxia, epilepsy, consumption, and the whole list of spinal and brain diseases to fear. What is worse he cannot hope to escape them all, and may be dragged down to his grave by a complication of many. Every advanced scientific

These remarks served to convince Daley that the men were what they represented themselves to be, and he gave them what they called for. They offered pay, but Daley refused to accept it, telling them they could call in Monday and settle. One of the men tried hard to buy half a pint of whisky, but Daley, it is claimed, positively refused to grant this request, and the party departed by the back entrance, which was the same way in which

Shortly after this coccurrence Kain, who had not before been at the asloon during the day, a revived and Daley told him what had transpited in to see how an entrance to the pince had been secured, as Daley said he was positive that he had fastened the hook gate the night, before and had not unfastened it subsequently.

The gate in question is in fact a double arrangement as large as a barn door and was fastened by means of a hook in a cross-bar of wood which extended from one side to the other. In order to accomplish their mission one of the party had stood on a block in the alley, put his hand through a hole nearly eighteen inches above the hook, and unfastened it.

"Having become keenly interested in the subject of the mineral treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis, as enunciated by Dr. Nevin B. Shade, in various articles from his pen, which have appeared in the melical journals during the past few years. I visited the city of Washington, D. C., where the doctor resides, for the purpose of carefully studying his treatment and ascertaining its results.
